

REACHING QUEBEC

Sharing the good news of Jesus Christ in Quebec City, Canada

Summer has flown by and now cooler days are here and autumn is in the air. It has been a busy summer for our family. Here in Quebec, there are a lot of changes taking place in the government regulations concerning homeschool. Sarah has had to spend a lot of time this summer planning and preparing to make sure we are meeting the new requirements. There are some real concerns that the government will overly intrude into our rights as parents to choose what we teach our children. We need your prayers and God's wisdom in navigating these changes. We have also been finishing various projects at the church and preparing for some special meetings. Our sending church collected a special offering to provide our church with new chairs that arrived just in time for our building dedication service in August. It was a great time to celebrate with other Quebec churches all that God has done for us and His wonderful provision for our church.

We were able to take a little time to enjoy summer as well. Our new house has lots of space outside for the kids to play, and there are other young families on our street that we have been able to connect with. Pray that we can have good opportunities to share the Gospel on our street. In July we attended a family camp in Michigan and enjoyed some needed family time together as well as being fed spiritually and enjoying good Christian fellowship. Dakota and I also had the chance to go on a father and son campout with a group from a sister church in Trois-Rivières.

This year the National Canadian Pastors' Conference was held here in Quebec City. This is an annual conference for independent Baptist churches across Canada. Our church had the privilege to host a pastors' luncheon during the conference and our church family did a great job working together to feed these men of God that are laboring for the cause of Christ. We praise the Lord for several new visitors that came to church this summer and also for lady named Pauline that recently accepted Christ! She recently attended the monthly Ladies breakfast and was in church Sunday morning. We're praying for her spiritual growth and also for her husband who still needs to be saved.

Please pray for our family's health as well. A few weeks ago, Analee had a serious infection, but thankfully she recovered quickly after a few rounds of antibiotics at the hospital. Ashlyn is recovering from a cold and I have been experiencing some health issues related to fatigue and the constant pressure of ministry. Thank you all for your continued support of our family through your giving and your prayers for us!
